

Kathy Bunch Driver is a life-long Baptist layperson who has been part of both small and large churches. She served in leadership roles at all levels, from chairing the diaconate, finance and personnel committees, and serving on pastoral search committees to teaching Sunday School, coordinating Senior Adult Activities and directing weddings for nearly 20 years! She is passionate about her long-term commitment to theological education, having served on the board of the Baptist House of Duke Divinity School for nearly 10 years. In that capacity she has enjoyed getting to know students and following them through school and into ministry. Kathy studied sociology at Guilford College, accounting at NCSU and Appreciative Inquiry at Case Western Reserve University. She is a highly regarded facilitator and trainer. She was an experienced executive coach and organizational development professional whose work was published in the Organizational Development Journal before joining the CBFNC Network. Her training includes coaching coursework at the Center for Creative Leadership in Greensboro and the Federal Executive Institute in Charlottesville, VA. She recently completed Basic Christian Leadership Certification through CBFNC. Her philosophy about coaching is that it can be a catalyst for creating the change you want to see in your life and in the life of your church. Kathy is an active member of Trinity Baptist Church in Raleigh, NC.
